

Promotional Information

Ad Copy

LET ME IN: A Japanese American Woman Crashes the Corporate Club 1976-1996

1976. a twenty-two-year-old Japanese American woman enters the management ranks of a major corporation and encounters...just what you'd expect. Sexism. Misogyny. Racial Bias. And she breaks barriers anyway.

LET ME IN

1976. a 22-year-old Japanese American woman enters management and encounters just what you'd expect. And she breaks barriers anyway.

(22 words, 141 characters including spaces.)

LET ME IN: A Japanese American Woman Crashes the Corporate Club 1976-1996

1976. a twenty-two-year-old Japanese American woman enters the management ranks of a major corporation and encounters...just what you'd expect. Sexism. Misogyny. Racial Bias. And she breaks barriers anyway.

From the moment Elaine Koyama was hired as a management trainee at agri-business giant Cargill, Inc. she found herself entangled in the endless fight to wedge herself through the doors the women's movement opened. As men and women all over the country began to examine and redefine the boundaries of their roles, Koyama, fresh out of Stanford, navigated farmyard sales calls, meetings at strip clubs, and a new life in the heart of the Midwest. In LET ME IN, Koyama shares the true story of how she fought her way through the corporate jungle before the term "glass ceiling" was even coined.

(142 words, 868 characters including spaces.)

Video or Live Appearances

Available for live, video or call in interviews, speaking engagements. Call or email for more information.

Book Club or personal appearances at events or book clubs on an availability basis. Book Club events schedule 30 minutes per, Facetime or Skype to one device. Minimum six book purchase for video appearances.

Promotional items available for sale in addition to books. See website for details.

Launch Party September 13, 2019

Book your event now!

www.elainekoyama.com